

The Best of the Best

These 73 pieces from 33 different in-plants were selected as In-Print 2019 winners.

Despite limited resources, in-plants produce some extraordinary work in their operations. Each year the In-Print contest gives them an opportunity to show it off. This year we received nearly 400 entries in the only contest exclusively for in-house printing departments, and 73 of them were singled out for Gold, Silver or Bronze awards.

Jointly sponsored by In-plant Impressions and the In-plant Printing and Mailing Association (IPMA), In-Print is always a tough contest to judge. A panel of in-plant managers met in March at IPMA headquarters in Kearney, Mo., to inspect the entries and spent a full day looking closely at each of them. A misplaced stitch, a crack on a fold, a crossover that didn't line up — sometimes that was all it took to move a piece out of contention. As a result, the winners were nearly flawless and displayed creativity, complexity, attention to detail and a high level of difficulty to produce.

The top winner this year was Bloomberg LP, which earned an impressive seven awards in the contest, three of them Gold awards. Also admirable was the Church of Scientology, which won six awards, all but one of them Gold. Other top winners this year were:

- The University of North Texas (five awards)
- Excellus BlueCross BlueShield (five awards)
- Oregon State University (four awards)

Once the winners had been selected, the judges laid out all of the Gold-winning offset and non-offset winners and picked a Best of Show winner for each. Those top winners will be revealed during the IPMA awards banquet in June, in Louisville, Ky.
